Warplanes Become Metal Scrap Piles

Disassembly Process Under Way on Large Scale

WALNUT RIDGE, ARK. — Old warplanes do not die, they simply come apart.

This disassembly process, getting under way on a large scale at the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's aircraft storage depot, is a step in the program for turning some 4,000 useless military planes into usable stock of equipment and metal.

The RFC, the surplus property administration and the army air forces combined in a tour of Walnut Ridge to demonstrate this phase of the solution to the surplus warplane problem.

Nearly 4,000 airplanes, mostly bombers and fighters, are parked in neat rows on the tarmac of the depot's five square miles. One in 10 will be saved from the smelter and "pickled" for later disposition—work in aviation, given to a city wishing a warplane memorial, or possibly being used for research and experiment.

Some of the planes are shining new, contact types, flown directly from the factory. An outstanding example are the Consolidated B-24 bombers, announced last summer as a running mate for the B-29 superfortress but now in production too late for more than a quick taste of fighting.

There were 47 B-24s on the field awaiting the salvage process. They, like others being lined up near them, are being stripped of all usable equipment—radar, radio, flight instruments, tires, engines and armament—before being prepared for storage or converted as scrap metal by smelting.

Walnut Ridge is one of six major storage depots. The others are at Altus and Clinton, Okla.; Kingman, Ariz.; Augusta, Ga., and Ontario, Calif. Surplus military aircraft are shown directly from the war theaters to the depot.

OBITUARY

MRS. J. HOLMSEY MARTIN

On Wednesday morning, December 26, 1945, a new day began for Mrs. Mollie Stephens Wright Martin, when her spirit was borne just across the way to that "Mansion, not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." It can truly be said that her life was spent in preparation for entrance into her eternal home. She was born in Appomattox Co. July 6, 1874, the daughter of Win. F. and Blanche Lane Wright, and had spent her entire life in this community, where she was known for her self-forgetfulness and sympathetic nature.

Her interests centered in her home and church. Early in her life she was a member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service, which was a part of the church. She was a devoted mother, a loving wife, and a faithful friend.

Her death was a surprise to all who knew her. She was a woman of great faith and courage, and her life was a testament to the power of God.

"GAY GADGETS"

By NANCY PEPPER

ON THE CUFF

Looks like a trend—this business of wearing gay cuffs on sweaters or jackets. But you'll be asking for dummies with matching cuffs soon.

Sweet for sweaters—Make 'em if you can't buy 'em, but, by all means, wear frilly cuffs and collar with your sweaters. The idea, junior, is to wear your old sweaters long, if you know what we mean, with the cuffs and collar neatly around your wrist.

Look With Lace —We've seen some short-sleeved, fitted sweaters frosted with lace edging around neckline and sleeves.

Ruffled Wrists—Buy a yard or so of ruffling. Sew some around the neck and sleeves of your old sweaters. The idea, junior, is to wear your old sweaters long, if you know what we mean, with the cuffs and collar neatly around your wrist.

NEW LOT of mens Hanes Union Suits and plain flannel shirts just arrived. Ladies and childrens find here oxford.

NOTICE

Be sure to get your dog tag before January 31st, 1946, and put your tags on the dog. Report to me at once all stray dogs that come to your place.

Game Warden.

Card of Thanks: We wish to thank our many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy shown us in the recent death of our mother, Mrs. Ann R. Durham, who died on January 8, 1946.

Insults With a Smile

Do you want to crack a joke? Yes, Well, just fall on your face!

You've got me up a tree!

Say "hello" to your folks for me while you're there.

What's the theme song of a worn out girl?

"Don't get around much anymore."

Minute Make-Ups

Scientist Finds Way to Eliminate Bread Mould

NEW YORK. — A 34-year-old food scientist has harnessed electronics to eliminate bread mold, a problem which has baffled bakers and housewives since the first batch of bread was turned out in Biblical times.

Dr. William H. Cathcart, young director of the A and P bakery laboratories, recently found that by "broadcasting" high frequency heat through wrapped loaves, he could kill the mold spores which cause bread to go stale.

This figure is more than twice as great as any previously reported by the A and P.

Domel, quoting the Hiroshima prefectural government as authority for its report, listed casualties as follows:

Instantly killed, 66,000; died of injuries, 69,000; missing and believed dead, 10,000; seriously injured, 14,000; slightly injured, 104,000.

HAMILTON - PUGH

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Pugh, of Richmond, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Audrey Elizabeth, to Jack M. Hamilton, of Appomattox. The wedding was solemnized December 14th, in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Northampton, N. C. W. T. Booker performed the ceremony. The couple will reside in Appomattox.

The bride wore soldier blue with black accessories. She is a graduate of the Appomattox High School and attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute, where she was a member of Phi Epsilon sorority.

The groom is a graduate of Kerrville schools, and has received his flight training under the Navy V-5 program. He will complete his training next week at Pensacola, Fla., where he is now stationed.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a short honeymoon.

Food to Spare For the Hungry

Farm Report Paints Picture Of European Hunger, American Plenty.

WASHINGTON. — A picture of European hunger and American plenty was drawn in a report by the agriculture department which may press a drive for early congressional action on a recommendation for an appropriation of $500,000,000 for foreign relief, says the Associated Press.

The need in continental Europe for large shipments of foodstuffs from other parts of the world in 1945 and 1946, according to the report. In the United States civilian supplies of food are abundant and will be significantly easier than they have been so far in 1945.

Discussing the European situation in greater detail, the report added: "It is thus plain that only substantial food imports from outside sources can save millions of Europeans from near-starvation in the coming winter."

Depends on Congress.

Extensive aid for Europe from this country will depend largely upon what congress does about funds for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration. Congress has made no move yet to act upon a request from President Truman, made recently.

The agriculture department has a special interest in the UNRRA recommendation. Sales of food to this agency could well provide an outlet for extra food supplies which otherwise might depress farm prices.

The department said this country could easily spare substantial quantities of canned meats, some fresh and frozen meats of lower grades, some sugar types of canned fruit, canned and powdered milk, eggs, canned and dried fruits, rice, some corn and wheat.

The administration may press congress for early action on the foreign relief matter for still another reason. The agriculture department cannot make plans for next year's farm production until it gets a fair idea of how much food can be discharged after 8 or 10 days without danger of giving rise to secondary cases or of causing return with complications."

The present requirement for hospital care for patients with scarlet fever patients was treated differently by group A with no sulfadiazine or antibiotics; group B was treated with muscular injections of penicillin; group C with sulfadiazine taken by mouth, and group D with note and throat spraying with a penicillin solution. Best results were obtained in group B.

The report said clinical results suggested the muscular treatment might "minimize or even eliminate late complications involving the ear, heart and joints and dangerous damage to the kidneys."

Furthermore, should these findings be corroborated on a large scale, the report added, "the use of penicillin for the treatment of scarlet fever patients for 8 or 10 days without danger of giving rise to secondary cases or of causing return with complications."

Cash Awards Increase

Birth Rate in Russia

MOSCOW. — Soviet Russia's birth rate, which before the war was one of the highest in the world, has increased more than one-third since the start of a 1944 decade giving cash awards to mothers of three children and more.

The commissariat of public health withheld actual figures, but announced that during the first nine months of this year the Soviet birth rate jumped 35.3 per cent over the same period last year.

Last recorded figures list Russia's 1933-39 birth rate as 41.1 for each 1,000 population, compared with 55.1 for the United States during the same period. Russia's last census, in 1939, disclosed a population of 133,729,266.

Assistant Commissioner M. D. Kovrig attributed the increase to the Supreme Soviet decree awarding payments ranging from 400 rubles (annually about $70) to the mother of three children, to 5,000 rubles (annually about $850) and 10,000 rubles (annually about $1,700) for each child in excess of 10.
